P.G. Wodehouse was one of the most prolific and popular humorists of the 20th century. He wrote over 90 books and countless short stories, many of which featured his iconic characters Jeeves and Wooster. Wodehouse was also a passionate golfer, and he wrote a number of golf-themed stories over the course of his career.

The Wodehouse Collection is a collection of 25 of Wodehouse's best golf stories. The stories are all written in Wodehouse's inimitable style, and they are full of humor, wit, and charm. Whether you're a fan of golf or not, you're sure to enjoy these stories.

The Stories

The stories in the Wodehouse Collection are all set in the world of golf. They feature a variety of characters, from professional golfers to amateur duffers. Wodehouse's stories are full of hilarious misunderstandings, ridiculous situations, and witty dialogue.

Some of the most popular stories in the collection include:

- "The Clicking of Cuthbert"
- "The Heart of a Goof"
- "The Long Hole"
- "The Mating Season"
- "The Sandwich Men"

The Characters

Wodehouse's golf stories feature a variety of memorable characters. Some of the most popular characters include:

- Lord Emsworth: A wealthy and eccentric aristocrat who is passionate about his golf game.
- Freddie Threepwood: A dim-witted but charming young man who is always getting into trouble on the golf course.
- Cyril "Soapy" Mulliner: A golf enthusiast who tells a series of hilarious stories about his golfing experiences.

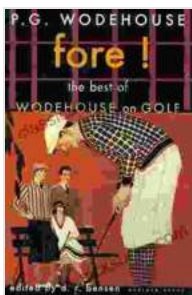

The Humor

Wodehouse's golf stories are full of humor. Wodehouse's humor is often subtle, but it is always effective. He pokes fun at the foibles of human nature, and he does it with a wit that is both sharp and gentle.

For example, in the story "The Clicking of Cuthbert," Lord Emsworth is so obsessed with his golf game that he ignores his duties as a magistrate. When a group of tramps come to his house begging for food, Emsworth tells them to go away and play golf. The tramps are so surprised by Emsworth's behavior that they just stand there staring at him. Finally, one of the tramps says, "Well, I never thought I'd see the day when a magistrate would tell a tramp to go and play golf." Emsworth replies, "Well, I never thought I'd see the day when a tramp would come to my house begging for food. But here we are."

The Verdict

The Wodehouse Collection is a delightful collection of golf stories that are sure to entertain readers of all ages. Wodehouse's humor is timeless, and his characters are unforgettable. If you're looking for a good laugh, then I highly recommend picking up a copy of the Wodehouse Collection.
