The Flint Firebirds, a team from Flint, Michigan, went 0-20-2 in the 2017-18 season. They were outscored by an average of 10 goals per game, and they allowed more goals than any other team in the state.

But despite their dismal record, the Firebirds had a lot to teach us about leadership. They showed us that it's possible to lead even when you're not winning. They showed us that it's important to stay positive even when things are tough. And they showed us that it's never too late to turn things around.

Lesson 1: It's Possible to Lead Even When You're Not Winning

The Firebirds were the worst team in the state, but they never gave up. They kept fighting, even when they were losing by double digits.

Their coach, Andy Weidenbach, said that he was proud of his team for their effort. "They never gave up," he said. "They always kept fighting."

This is an important lesson for leaders. It's not always easy to lead when you're not winning. But it's important to remember that your team will look to you for guidance and inspiration. Even when things are tough, you need to stay positive and keep fighting.

Lesson 2: It's Important to Stay Positive Even When Things Are Tough

The Firebirds faced a lot of adversity during the 2017-18 season. They lost every game, and they were often outscored by double digits.

But despite all of this, the Firebirds never lost their sense of humor. They joked around with each other on the bench, and they always found a way to laugh at themselves.

Weidenbach said that his team's sense of humor helped them get through the tough times. "They were able to laugh at themselves, and that helped them stay positive," he said.

This is an important lesson for leaders. It's not always easy to stay positive when things are tough. But it's important to remember that your team will look to you for guidance and inspiration. If you're negative, they'll be negative. But if you're positive, they'll be positive.

Lesson 3: It's Never Too Late to Turn Things Around

The Firebirds had a terrible season in 2017-18, but they turned things around the following year. They finished with a 6-16-2 record, which was still not great, but it was a significant improvement.

Weidenbach said that his team's improvement was due to their hard work and dedication. "They worked hard all summer, and they were determined to improve," he said.

This is an important lesson for leaders. It's never too late to turn things around. If you're not happy with the way things are going, you can make a change. All it takes is hard work and dedication.

The Flint Firebirds are the worst high school hockey team in America. But they have a lot to teach us about leadership. They showed us that it's possible to lead even when you're not winning. They showed us that it's important to stay positive even when things are tough. And they showed us that it's never too late to turn things around.

These are important lessons for all leaders. If you want to be a successful leader, you need to be able to lead even when things are tough. You need to be able to stay positive even when things are going wrong. And you need to be able to believe that you can turn things around.

The Flint Firebirds are a reminder that anything is possible. Even the worst team in America can turn things around. So if you're facing a challenge, don't give up. Keep fighting, stay positive, and believe that you can turn things around.
